Morning Brief

Today's Outlook:

- S&P 500 closed above 5,000 for the first time on Friday (09/02/24) and Nasdaq briefly traded above 16,000, as the record run in stocks continued, underpinned by a rally in tech stocks and economic data showing inflation continues to trend lower. Revised US consumer price index data showed that the annualized inflation rate in the fourth quarter was unchanged at 3.3%, suggesting that the easing of price pressures over the past year is still intact. Shares of chipmakers also drove the rally in the technology sector as demand for chips will increase as the artificial intelligence (AI) technology boom strengthens. Strong US economic data and hawkish comments from Fed officials in recent days have dashed hopes that the central bank will start cutting interest rates in March. Market participants are awaiting the release of January CPI data tomorrow for further clues on when the Fed will cut borrowing costs aka benchmark interest rates.
- ASIA & EUROPE MARKETS: While the main Asian markets (Japan, China, South Korea) are still on holiday, this Monday it is likely that market participants will direct their attention to Europe, especially because of the Eurogroup Meetings. There will be more economic indicators from both continents tomorrow, such as: Japan PPI (Jan), Indonesia Consumer Confidence (Jan), UK labor report, and German ZEW Economic Sentiment (Feb).
- JCI closed with a Dark Cloud-like candle last Wednesday, closing the short trading week with doubts again whether there is not a strong enough reason to break the important Resistance of 7280, especially in a political week that determines the future of Indonesia's presidency & cabinet for the next 5 years. NHKSI RESEARCH expects market participants to be quite fixated on monitoring the results of the presidential election which quick count will soon come into focus in the next few days, after citizens who are old enough exercise their voting rights on 14Feb. Anticipate volatile trading transactions this week, where it is expected that foreign buying interest will continue this week as the democratic party takes place.

Soaring Prices, Bapanas Bluntly Admits RI Lacks Rice Stocks

Head of the National Food Agency (Bapanas), Arief Prasetyo Adi, admitted that there is currently a shortage of rice supply of up to 2.4 million tons. Arief said that it is currently necessary to supply enough rice so that the balance of rice availability and needs is maintained in the midst of shortages due to the El Nino phenomenon. "In January and February 2024, we are short of 2.4 million tons of rice [production versus consumption]," Arief said in Jakarta, as quoted from Antara, Sunday (11/2/2024). Arief stated that the government continues to balance the availability of national rice with the Farmer Exchange Rate (NTP) of food crops. He emphasized that the importation policy is the last resort to maintain rice availability. "Although it is very bitter, importation must now be carried out. It may not be popular, but it must be done to fulfill current needs," Arief said. He said that the current increase in rice prices was not affected by the voting period for the General Election (Pemilu) or the long holiday period to commemorate Isra Mikraj and Chinese New Year 2024. #### Bank of Italy Governor Urges European Central Bank to Cut Interest Rates Soon

Bank of Italy Governor Fabio Panette called on the European Central Bank (ECB) to immediately start cutting interest rates, which have reached the highest level of 4% in September 2023. Panette at the annual Assiom Forex event in Genoa, Saturday (10/2/2024), saw that macroeconomic conditions show that disinflation is at an advanced stage, and progress towards the 2% target continues rapidly. "The time for a reversal of the monetary policy stance is approaching," he said, quoted from Bloomberg, Sunday (11/2/2024). ECB officials are preparing to ease policy this year for the European region, which is projected in April or June. However, the decision will depend on inflation, which has fallen in recent months but is not expected to reach the 2% target again until next year. "There is no upside to inflation expectations, if there are downside risks emerging. Concerns about the hypothesis of persistently high core inflation have also proved unfounded," he said. (Bisnis)
